

ABSTRACT

A communication system for communicating information between an information source and an information recipient which includes means for optionally directly converting
5 information from a primary language to a secondary language. More particularly, the present invention provides a communication system which enables messages sent by phone, facsimile, email, pager, SMS or other means to be converted into an alternative format and/or language and either stored or forwarded to an information recipient.